Dear Mr. David Wood,

On behalf of the PMI's Certification Department, congratulations on the successful demonstration of your project management knowledge by passing the Project Management Professional (PMP)® examination. As one of a select group of project management practitioners to earn the PMP designation, you can justifiably take pride in your accomplishment. Welcome to the global community of PMP credential holders.

The enclosed material is provided to you as a new PMP credential holder. Review this material carefully and create a PMP credential file to maintain these and additional materials you will receive pertaining to the maintenance of your credential. Included in this packet are a personalized certificate and a pin that attest to the fact that you are a certified Project Management Professional. On your PMP certificate you will find:

- PMP number: This is the unique identification number used by PMI to maintain your PMP record. This number, along with the PMI identification number (issued when you applied), is needed to access the online system used for reporting professional development units (PDUs) and to register your PMP activities in compliance with Continuing Certification Requirements (CCR) program.
- PMP Original Grant Date: This is the date that you earned the PMP credential. As you renew your credential every three years, this date will remain the same. If you allow your credential to expire and successfully earn the PMP again, then you will be issued a new PMP since date.
- PMP Expiration Date: This is the date that your active credential expires. You must renew your credential before this date to remain an active PMP. You will receive a new certificate with the current date each time you renew your PMP credential, but you will retain your original PMP number.

We understand that you may have questions and we are happy to provide the support you need. For more detailed information about your credential and its maintenance, please view the frequently Asked Questions on the Credential & Certification pages of www.pmi.org. If you have questions, please email customercenter@pmi.org.

Sincerely,
